Winkelman, Tonto and Redington NRCDs have worked with partners to implement over $10 million in conservation practices.

NRCS Update Per Alisha Phipps, Team 7 received a $1.2 million allocation for general EQIP. Statewide NRCS has $8.4 million for the Conservation Stewardship Program. $800,000 is planned for Tucson. NRCS is taking applications until December.

El Rio Sol Transmission Update (Cindy Freeman):

Sun Zia has sold their project to Pattern Energy. Construction has started in San Manuel. People from Oracle wanted changes because of their designation as a dark sky town. The first line that will be built will deliver DC power. This will give potential power connection capabilities to areas close to the line. The second line will deliver AC power; lines can be intercepted to serve customers along the line. Line 2 is being built by Southwest Power Group who is now owned by the El Rio Sol Transmission Project. Construction of this line is expected to be completed by 2028. Bill Dunn asked if Pattern Energy would be interested in partnering with the Winkelman and Redington NRCDs to complete projects that would preserve natural resources and Pattern Energy said “yes” they would.

Arizona Department of Agriculture Grant Update (Marty Suter):

Marty is the new, Grant Program Coordinator and discussed the Livestock Operator Fire and Flood Assistance Program. It funds landowners and lessees who require reconstruction assistance as a result of infrastructure damage caused by a wildfire and associated flooding. She recommended asking for these funds if a producer has gotten a grant from another program and may have found that due to rising prices some of the existing grants no longer cover the costs to complete projects. Marty is available to help producers write the request for project funds. Funding for these projects is awarded on a quarterly basis. The next two grant submission deadlines are December 29, 2023 & March 29, 2024.

Ranch Bot (Jake Woehlecke)

Jake Woehlecke demonstrated his monitoring system for water in tanks, ponds, etc. It is solar powered and satellite assisted. The software is on your phone; so, you can monitor any time without having to ride out to the water source. Andy Smallhouse has purchased the system and says it saves him a lot of time. He likes the emergency notification on his phone when a tank is completely empty.

CDB Lawsuit Against Coronado National Forest The Center for Biological Diversity (CDB) and the Maricopa Audubon Society sued the Secretary of Interior and Agriculture, the USDA Forest Service (Coronado National Forest) and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service seeking an injunction against existing authorized grazing and an injunction against renewal of grazing authorizations and asking the agency to re-consult with FWS. There are 177 grazing allotments in the Coronado National Forest that might be considered, because the petition asks for re-consultation not on critical, but “occupied” habitat of the Yellow-billed Cuckoo, Southwestern Willow Flycatcher and Sonoran Chub. The Southern Arizona Cattleman’s Protective Association has hired attorney Norman James, a top Endangered Species attorney, to seek intervenor status for it in the lawsuit. The initial attorney fees are estimated around $25,000.00 just to achieve intervenor status. They are asking each producer who has grazing rights to donate $1,000.00 to the fund for Mr. James. Katie Cline reported that they have already raised $30,000.00 and will be holding at least two fundraisers in November. Andy Smallhouse suggested the Redington district consider trying to join as an intervenor in the lawsuit. No action taken.

UA Coop Extension Ashley Hall stated that she can deliver a course for beginning ranchers. There are other courses she can deliver but prefers to hear what stakeholders in a District want to learn about. They will be conducting workshops for high school students. She asked both Districts to help promote the NRCWY camp at Mingus Mountain for high school aged kids that will occur this summer.

Grants Update: Water Protection Fund (Kyle Thompson, WNRCD Coordinator) Kyle has found resources that can provide plants and seeds for willows. So far, the district is below budget in expending grant funds. There is $30,000 left to purchase plants and seeds and the district needs to plant several hundred more plants per our Water Protection Fund grant.

Adjourn Meeting Andy Smallhouse moved to adjourn the meeting at 12:12 pm. Seconded by Carol Dubois. Motion Passed 6-0.

The proposed date for the next WNRCD meeting is November 15, 2023

WRMC & RNRCD Education Center Combined Meeting

West Pinal Ed Center Nancy Caywood, Director of the West Pinal NRC Ed Center gave a presentation about the activities of their robust Ed Center programs. Nancy has created many lesson plans about agriculture and food production. The Ed Center continues to use those plans. Jennifer Salcido visits school classrooms and presents interactive lessons. Nancy also has her own business where she has groups come to her farm and she gives lessons there, often gives hayrides and tours of the farm. 3,000 people visit her farm each year. Each group usually participates in 3 or 4 fifteen-minute lessons. Nancy said if the districts were to use their model they should get sufficient insurance. Nancy said that both American Family Life and the AZ Farm Bureau sell Agri-tourism insurance. She invited us to attend one of their programs.
